

JAP EXCLUSION TREATY IS PLAN OF PRESIDENT

Mutual Barring of Laborers from Each Country May Be Outcome.

ORIENTALS ARE WILLING

If Terms Are Equitable Such an Agreement Is Likely to Be Reached.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6. — President Roosevelt confidently expects to be able to settle the troublesome problem that has arisen because of the discrimination against Japanese in the schools of San Francisco. Neither he nor any other member of the administration has the remotest idea that there will be war or even a breach of the friendly relations between Japan and this country.

The basis of settlement on which the President is working is this:

1. The negotiation of a treaty between the United States and Japan, or appropriate legislation by Congress, to prevent the entrance into this country of Japanese laborers.
2. The arrangement of a similar prohibition on the part of Japan to prevent the entrance into that country of American workmen.

ii. The acceptance by Japan of the explanation given in regard to the discrimination against Japanese children in the public schools of San Francisco.

It is not known just what progress has been made in the direction of arranging for the exclusion of Japanese coolies by treaty, although the matter is now being formulated. It is believed that a treaty would be the best vehicle, as it would afford fewer grounds for irritation among the lower classes in Japan.

The proposition to exclude Japanese laborers is acceptable to the Japanese authorities, who have for years desired to turn the tide of immigration in the direction of Korea and Manchuria. The government of Japan declined to entertain a suggestion that labor from that country should be employed in constructing the Panama Canal. It is positively known that Japan would welcome any treaty stipulation or legislative enactment prohibiting the entrance of Japanese laborers into the United States.

The proposition that American workmen be prevented from entering Japan is entirely acceptable to the administration officials. It is impossible for Americans to compete in Japan with the cheap labor, and consequently no American will seek employment in that country.

The last clause of the second article in the existing treaty reads:

"It is, however, understood that the stipulations contained in this and the preceding article do not in any way prevent the free and unrestricted immigration with regard to trade, the immigration of laborers, police and public security which are in force at each country hereafter be enacted in either of the two countries."

It is held that under the reservations contained in this clause an exclusion act could be passed and made as drastic as that now in existence relative to the admission of Chinese laborers.

Variation for Villainy.
(From the Philadelphia Bulletin.)
"I've got a brand-new idea for a melodrama," shouted the dramatist in great excitement. "The wicked uncle wants to get rid of the boy."
"And his aim with a real pile-driver, I suppose?" granted the blame manager.
"No, no. He gets him admitted to the Naval Academy at Annapolis."
